Army Reserve Traineeship and Apprentice Program

Program Summary

The Army Reserve Traineeship and Apprenticeship Program (ARTAP) provides a specialised training and recruitment pathway into the Army Reserve (ARes).

The ARTAP provides an opportunity for suitable candidates to enlist in the ARes to undertake both military training and, under a partnership agreement with a Group Training Organisation (GTO), trade or technical training in a civilian apprenticeship or traineeship.

ARTAP expands the technical capability of the ARes in order to provide ongoing embedded integral technical capability and skills within the ARes, and to provide surge capability to the Australian Regular Army (ARA).

Contact details, advice and information regarding the Australian Reserve Traineeship and Apprentice Program can be found in the Defence Instruction.
